

Lace Closure/Frontal Care

Closures/frontals are small lace fabric pieces with individual hair strands braided and knotted. Very important to take extra care of your closure/frontal to prevent it from balding. Balding is when your closure/frontal begins to have a spot where the hairs have come out of the base creating a balding appearance. It can be caused by excessive pulling, combing, scratching with fingernails or foreign objects, etc but never on its own accord. Closure/frontal are not your real scalp, so you should take good care of it and not treat it like a real scalp.

Each hair is individually ventilated into the base, knotted and secured. Based on the construction of a closure/frontal, you should comb the hair from the ends, working your way up to the root while hold the hair at the root to prevent tension which causes balding. Hair loss on hair closure/frontal is relatively easy because it is not wefted like extensions. Irregular care approach of your hair closure/frontal may cause hair loss and balding.
